Education path

I obtained my medical degree from the New University of Lisbon school of Medicine - Nova Medical School - in 2000, and finished my Internal Medicine Board Examination in 2011. I studied a Master in Management from the University of Cambridge (Judge Business School), where I defended a dissertation on "How to teach Management and Leadership to Medical Students", and then a PhD degree at the same University with a thesis on "The use of Mobile ICT in clinical Settings". As I concluded my medical residency in Internal Medicine I did a Masters in HIV/AIDS from the University of Barcelona. I have studied post-graduated degrees in Public Procurement and Business Management, and on 2018 started a master degree in Law at the Portuguese Catholic University, now working on a thesis about Public Liability Implications of Artificial Intelligence in Health. I have more than 40 peer-reviewed articles and some book chapters and other minor publications in the areas of Mobile computing in healthcare, medical education and eHealth and hundreds of conference presentations/keynotes in the area of eHealth.
